Course Description
This course surveys an array of psychological views on human nature. The first half consists of a review of traditional perspectives of human nature, and a review of currently proposed principles of human nature, mostly from Systems theory perspective, but also from elsewhere.

This half of the course introduces two special topics: a particularly expansive framework for viewing human nature in terms of strata of existence, and the work of Milton H. Erickson as an example of application of many of the principles of human nature that were reviewed.

The second half of this course follows the format of the introduced framework and looks at current psychological theories. It consists of assigned readings and students’ presentations.

The readings for this course comprise of a mixture of material; including original academic articles and chapters from popular books by scientists. These readings are meant to give you both the experience of studying primary scientific material and to rouse your interest.

The grading scheme aims to create an opportunity for deeper study, thus there is no one all-encompassing exam and class work is distributed throughout the course. There is an assignment for every class, quizzes twice a month, presentations and a paper.

Prerequisites:
AK/AS/HH/SC/PSYC 1010 6.00 or AK/HH/PSYC 2410 6.00, with a minimum grade of C; AK/AS/HH/SC/PSYC 2030 3.00 or AK/HH/PSYC 2530 3.00; one of AK/AS/HH/SC/PSYC 2021 3.00, AK/AS/HH/SC/PSYC 2020 6.00, AK/HH/PSYC 2510 3.00. Open to students after completion of 84 credits.
Course Objectives

Students are expected to gain:
- an appreciation of the varied, paradoxical, dynamic, and at times beyond definition, nature of human experience.
- understanding of the perspectives offered by traditional theories of human nature.
- knowledge of Systems theory approach.
- acquaintance with a selection of current theoretical works on human nature. These works range in their focus on the physiological, mental, environmental, and spiritual strata of human life.
- acquaintance with a framework that allows a comprehensive overview and a systematic organization of theories of human nature.
- ability to apply theoretical principles of human nature to daily life.

Grading Scheme, option 1

1. 7 multiple-choice quizzes 50%
2. 15 Assignments 20%
3. 2 presentations 30%

Grading Scheme, option 2
Recommended for those who plan to continue with graduate studies

1. 7 multiple-choice quizzes 25%
2. 16 Assignments 20%
3. 1 presentation 15%
4. 1 paper 40%

Assignments: an overview

- All assignments are to be typed and written up in point form, unless specified otherwise.
- All assignments are on the material that is to be covered in class on the date the assignment is due. An Exception: assignment #1 is due 1 class earlier (see schedule)
- Based on each assignment, compile a ‘master list’ of the principles of human functioning covered class. Keep this list separate and attached it to assignment #7 (the last one in Fall semester).

Assignments #1 to #6 (Fall semester)

- State the main points of each reading.
- Identify any principles of human functioning mentioned in the reading.
- Make up one discussion question and an answer.
- Compose a question (or more) about something in the material that was not clear to you or that you would like to hear it being reviewed in class. No answer is needed.
- Give a personal example from daily life of one of the principles of human nature covered in the previous class. Alternatively, give a personal example from daily life of an application of a human value of your choice. (The example is to be written in full sentences, paragraph format.)

Assignment #7

This assignment is meant to be an applied review of all the principles of human nature we identified in class. Here is where you are expected to use the 'master list' of principles.

- Course kit reading (O’Hanlon)
  - State the main points of the reading.
  - Using your ‘master list’, identify the principles of human functioning applied by M. H. Erickson.
- An Ericksonian case of your choice that was not mentioned in O’Hanlon’s reading (see references in class schedule).
  - Briefly describe the case using full sentences, paragraph format
  - Using your ‘master list’, identify the principles of human functioning applied in this case. Briefly describe the application of each principle.
- A clarification question/s about the assigned material.

Assignments #8 to #17 (part A), (Winter semester)

- State the thesis of each reading or audio material.
- List the main points of each reading or audio material.
- List human nature principles found in the reading using your ‘master list’.
- Make up one discussion question and an answer.
- Compose a question (or more) about something in the material that was not clear to you or that you would like to hear it being reviewed in class. No answer is needed.
- Give a personal example from daily life of a human nature principle identified in this reading or of a human value of your choice— one paragraph. (Written in full sentences, paragraph format.)

Assignment #17 (part B)

- What does the poem extract mean to you? (Paragraph format)
Course Requirements, continued

Quizzes
- Each one will cover all the topics scheduled since the last quiz.
- Multiple-choice format
- 15 or 30 minutes (depending on number of questions)

Team Presentations

Topic
The layer of human existence listed in class schedule.

Format
A panel with a chairperson.

Structure
Part 1. The team presents the general topic and the specific class readings by
  • reviewing a diagram of all the layers of human existence (1 min.)
  • arguing how essential is the specific layer of existence they are presenting (2 min.)
  • Organizing a game and Q & A period about the reading (up to 20 min.)

Part 2. Individual presentations, 10 min each.
Part 3. A Q & A period on the individual presentations.

References for Individual presentations are
  • chosen by each individual
  • academic (written for academic readers)
  • about a theory (most likely to be found in books)
  • preselected in 2 cases (see ♦ on schedule) and for all last class presentations, (see CD)

Two presentation handouts
  • in point form
  • length: 1 – 1 ½ pages
  • to be given to all students

1. A handout from the team includes
  • the thesis and main points of the assigned reading
  • principles from the ‘master list’ that are found in the reading; names & brief descriptions.

2. A handout from each student includes:
  • the thesis and main points of the chosen reference.
  • principles from the ‘master list’ that are found in the reference; names & brief descriptions.
  • 2 multiple-choice questions about the main concepts of the reference. (These questions may be presented to the class and may be used in the next quiz.)
  • 2 copies of this handout to the Course Director
  • a photocopy of the reference is to be given to the Course Director; it may have your notes on it and will be returned to you.

Preparatory meetings with the course director
  • at least 2 classes before the presentation date.
  • Each team will suggest a tentative outline for the presentation and bring up any questions about the material.
  • Optional: review appropriateness of the individually selected references with Course Director.

When you are presenting, you do not need to do the homework assignment.

Paper for option 2
Content: A look at three theoretical perspectives on human nature, all about the same stratum of human life.
Length: 8 to 12 pages
Format: APA style
Content: Review - each theory
Discuss - (a) to what extent these theories complement or contrast each other, (b) to what extent the stratum involved is fully covered by these theories
Conclude – your thoughts and insights; including other theoretical directions and other strata of human nature.
Due dates Complete paper draft – November 17
Final submission – February 2

Course, Departmental, and University Policies

Grading: (For a full description of York grading system see the York University Undergraduate Calendar - http://calendars.registrar.yorku.ca/pdfs/ug2004cal/calug04_5_acadinfo.pdf)

Assignment Submission: Due dates and times are specified on the class schedule. Earlier submissions may be made to the course secretary (BSB 281) and have to be date stamped.

Late Assignments: Late assignments are not accepted without an officially satisfactory reason. Technical problems involving computer and printer are not acceptable reasons for missing these due dates.

Eligibility for a make-up quiz

- The student has to contact the CD or secretary within 48 hours of the missed quiz (unless circumstances do not allow). Circumstances preventing contact within 48 hours must be accompanied by documentation.

- If the student expects to miss a quiz in advance, he or she has to apply for a make-up exam before making arrangements to be elsewhere.

Use of laptop and other electronics in the classroom is acceptable for special needs situations only.

Some references about the impediment this may cause for successful learning are:
